

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election is a clear example of the dangers of media consolidation. Since the public airwaves are just that, PUBLIC, I find it abhorant that a "news" conglomerate is allowed to be so Partisan so close to election. The diversity of this great land is being compromised by your lack of oversight and truthfully, I find it increasingly difficult to believe that Michael Powell is anything but a corporate servant.

Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest. But when large companies control the airwaves, we get more of what's good for the bottom line and less of what we need for our democracy. Instead of something produced at "News Central" far away, it's more important that we see real people from our own communities and more substantive news about issues that matter.

Sinclair's actions show why we need to strengthen media ownership rules, not weaken them. They show why the license renewal process needs to involve more than a returned postcard. I would also encourage you to exercise envigorated oversight with the FOX NEWS organisation, Thank you.
